

Linda,

I want to wish you a very, very Happy & high birthday for being one of the best, smartest, most wonderful, understanding friends anyone could have. Even though I don't deserve a friend as good as you are, I'm just glad that you understand all my problems & are strong enough to cope with me and listen to me. You are one of my favorite dog-smokin, beer-drinking, problem telling partners & I always want you to be. I thought this card was appropriate for me to give to you since I'm a cowgirl & you're a city girl.
I'm really sorry this is late, but you know the saying — Better late than never. I realize how much shit I've put you thru, but I hope deep down you forgive me. Even though I know I don't act like I'm sorry all the time. Linda, you're my closest friend & I hope whatever happens you always will be. I was going to put 'I love you' at the end but it probably would have sounded kind of corny, ~~so~~ but I really do. I want to wish you many happy years ahead of you & all the luck in the world. I really do love you. & I always want you to be my ~~best~~ goodest friend.

Love always,

Jane
the

Banana,

P.S. I really do wish you would go back to school —
even though it is a drag. You're too smart of a chick to waste all those brains. — Keep it ~~in~~ in mind. I think you would be alot happier.
